A Disastrous Stoppage.

London, June 5 .- At a meeting of the South Staffordshire Mines Drainage Commissioners yesterday, it was announced that owing to a debt of £40,000 in the Tipton district all pumping engines would be stopped last night. The effect of this would be the flooding of hundreds of collieries for miles around, and South Staffordshire would never recover from the disaster. A meeting of all colliery owners is called for Wednesday next to consider the position of

They are largely indebted to the Presbyterian Missionary Agency in America, for whom they were agents.

Suspended Operations.

Baltimore, June 5.—The Druid Duck Mills of Gambrill, at Woodbury, near this city, will suspend operations to-day for an indefinite period. The Selection of Text Books

Correspondence of the News. RALEIGH, N. C., June 5 .- My attention has been struck by a communica-tion in your issue of to-day on the sub-ject of Text-Books in our Public Schools, which, to my mind is calculated to mislead. The selection of text books is a matter of two much importance to be governed by personal considerations. The authors of the "University Series" may be, and doubtless are, exceedingly clever gentlemen; but I submit that this fact should not be allowed weight in making a selection of their produc-tions as text-books The only question should be, "Is the book the best one published?" If not, reject it, no mat-ter by whom written or published. Now it is a fact that many of the gen-tlemen at the head of our "Private Schools" have come to the conclusion that these books—"University Series" do not come up to the very highest standard, and have determined to use others in their stead. I do trust that our "State Board" will in their selection be governed by merit only. Professor Swell, of William and Mary, says: "In the selection of a text box the benefit of the student, and not of the author or publisher is to be consulted."

I hope our "Board" will assent to, and act on so plain a proposition. BEST BOOKS. Commencement at Thomasville.

Correspondence of the News. THOMASVILLE, June 4.-The second of the Thomasville Female College has just closed, and I hasten to give you some brief jottings. The weather has been everything that could be desired, and everybody seemed to enjoy it. It has been a great day for Thomasville and the College. Passengers have been coming in by every train and carriages in abundance. At an early hour the College chapel was filled to its utmost. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Pritchard, after which the school sang a beautiful anthem, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord." But I cannot attempt to give anything like a minute detail, and will only give a few points. Of course the main feature of the day was the essays, etc., of the graduating class and the distribution of the diplomas and distinctions, which were all done in excellent style and to the evident satisfaction of all. Indeed, Professor Reinhart and his most excellent lady, together with the able body of assistant teachers, may well be proud of the success which has crowned their year's work. The rapid growtn of the school demands larger accommodations, and I understand an additional build-ing 40x64 feet is to be erected, which will add materially to the appearance and comfort of the school, making it second to none in the State. But I am forgetting the address of the day by the Rev. Dr. A. B. Brown, of Virginia, which was entirely above description. Suffice it to say that the address was appropriate, and listened to with the utmost attention. Dr. Brown is one of Virginia's noblest men. But I have not time to write more, and must close with best wishes for this excellent school of learning.

WAKE FOREST COLLEGE.

Preparations for Commencement Laying the Corner Stone.

Correspondence of the News. WAKE FOREST COLLEGE, June 5.— The boys are beginning to be happy now over the prospects of Commence-ment, for the pleasures of anticipation are unalloyed by the presence of exam-inations. This reconstructions inations. This evening closes the "tug of war," as to-morrows examinations are all on English spelling and exercise, which, comparatively si caking, is as moonshine, notwithstanding the high grade of scholarship sometimes causes careless ones to "grieve over spilt milk."

We now anxiously await Commencement. If the present signs indicate anything we are sure to have the grandest literary gathering and social re-union ever witnessed in the old North State. The day spring on our horizon was never brighter. Everybody is perfectly enthusiastic. The Trustees are all coming. The Alumni will be here en masse, and the young people are coming from every direction.

The exercises of next week will begin on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when the declaimers will contest for the Declamation Medal. About a dozen have entered their names for the con-test and some of them are sure to be defeated, though the audience may expect something rich, for most of them are good declaimers. The trustees meet on Tuesday. There is much important business to be transacted, but that upon which there is most importance attached is the election of a president. We hope they will elect a good man; but they will never find another Wingate, a man so pure, so noble, so unselfish. It is hard to con-jecture who will be their choice. I don't believe they can choose from a better class or make a better choice than to confer the honor upon some member of the present faculty. They know the college and deserve the honor. On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock Rev Jno. A. Broadus, D. D., LL. D., will preach the baccalaureate sermon. He is said to be the most eminent and eloquent divine in the South.

Wednesday at 11 a.m., Honorable
Matt. W. Ransom will address the literary societies. At 3 p. m., Reverend Mr. Ivey, pastor of the Baptist church at Goldsboro, will deliver an address on the "Life and Character of our late President." This, of itself, will attract a large crowd, as Doctor Wingate was so well known and so much loved. At 8 p. m., Reverend R. R. Savage will de-liver the Alumni Address.

Thursday—Commencement Day—the graduating class will claim their share of the exercises. At 3 p. m. of the same day will be laid

THE CORNER STONE in honor of Doctor Wingate, and is to be called for him, Wingate Hall.

At 8 p. m. there will be a social gath ering, complimentary to the graduating class. This will take place in their new halls. The two literary halls are ones say they are the handsomest in the South. All we ask is for every one to come and see for themselves. We extend to the Chapel Hill boys a cordial invitation to drop in on their way home, and we will give them a hearty welcome.

A Turkey Gobbler Lays Three Eggs.

Abbeville (S. C.) Medium. Miss Bass, of Lebanon, has a turkey gobbler just a little ahead of anything in the turkey line in history or tradition. Last week the turkey was a gobbler in all the pride of his gobblerhood; now he is a turkey hen, and as a proof of his change of sex, laid three eggs on the day succeeding this monstrous meta-morphosis. This tale will seem almost incredible, but the owner has the eggs to show for themselves. How can such an unheard-of change be accounted for? What do the scientists say, and what's to become of us when turkey gobblers turn against their own sex in this way and settle down into laying hens? Oh, it is awful!

Every railroad car on the several roads crossing it will have to pay him $4 to $5, and the purchase, it is said, gives him complete control of the railroad communication in that region. The bridge has cost its bond and stockholders more than twice the amount he paid for it.

The Tilden Income Tax Case.

Chicago Times. The government lawyers move slow-ly in the Tilden income tax case. Months ago the defendant was ready for trial, but the government asked to file a "bill of discovery," which they insisted would facilitate the progress of the case. At length the bill has been filed, and further dilatory proceedings will waste some more months. The case will be got into shape for use in the next Presidential elections; and that is about all that is wanted of it.

THE ORDER OF EXERCISES AS CARRIED OUT. Names of the Students who carried

CHAPEL HILL, June 4th, 10 P. M .-Again Girard Hall is literally crowded with representatives of the beauty and gallantry of the Old North State. The attraction to-night is the delivery of original addresses by the representatives of the Literary Societies.

As early as 7:30 the brilliant audience began to gather, and for one hour and

BEAUTIFUL LADIES RICHLY ATTIRED and handsome men gorgeously arrayed kept pouring in until the rather small hall was densely packed. When Governor Jarvis, arm in arm with President Battle, entered the hall the applause which his entrance in the forenoon created broke out afresh. When General J. M. Leach came in a small sized boy away back in the southeast corner began feebly to applaud, and the refrain was quickly taken up by the audience and the jolly General received round after round of applause second only to that which greeted the Governor, but be took it quietly, merely remarking so to voce to the Hon. John Manning, "now see what good looks will do." The entrance of the six speakers preceded by a marshal was the occasion for another outburst of ap-

Marcus Cicero Stephens Noble, Selma, N. C. Subject: "National Unity." 3. From the Dialectic Society: James Wiley Forbes, Greensboro, N. C. Sub-ject: "The South Shall 1 et be Free." 4. From the Philanthropic Society: Locke Craig, Chapel Hill, N. C. Sub-

the real Commencement day, and a lovelier day never dawned on the grand old University. Before proceeding to report the exercises your reporter desires to make a personal explanation. In the report of yesterday's proceedings as published in this morning's News several errors occurred for which I am not responsible. I closed my report at the completion of the matter under the sub-heading, "Replete with interesting reminiscences." The remainder of the report was added in the office by the editor, and he alone is responsible for bringing back to earth after a quiet sleep of six years, good old Miss Nancy Hilliard by omitting the word formerly, and for increasing the crowd from one to three thousand.

This morning the large number of visitors already in Chapel Hill was added to considerably

The exercises opened with the singing by the University choir of the following hymn:

After the singing, Rev. Mr. Long, of Alamange, led the large audience in prayer. President Battle made a few remarks, invoking good order, and then announced that the trouble would begin with an address by JOHN MOORE MANNING of Pittsboro, on "Capital and Labor as Affected by Government." Mr. Man-ning, as indeed did all the speakers, acquitted himself in a manner highly creditable to the name which he bears. The next address had for its subject, "Effects of Modern Inventions on Polities and Morality," and ROBERT WATSON WINSTON,

Mr. Hill is a forcible speaker, and pre-sents his views with a vim which proves not only his earnestness, but also gives evidence that he is a man who speaks his honest sentiment fearlessly and stands to them from principle. He wants to bring all China to America to build railroads, open laundries and be converted and sent to heaven. The band, which was in place, renlered appropriate tunes between the

Mr. Albright remarked, in reply to my complaint of this, that I would be there several days. In addi-tion he promised that I should have the advantage of seeing everything in the city, all expenses to be paid by him-hack drives, hotel fare and sumptuous entertainments." 'Did you have many visitors?" "Yes, he brought several gentemen he said they were the elite of the city—their wives would call, and he would bring his wife also. Finally, drives were proposed, but I declined. Toward the evening he called again, and said o e of the most prominent gentlemen the city would come in a carriage to take me to the hall and introduce me. The distinguished citizen called before dark, but I took the chambermaid of the hotel with me. Instead of driving to the hall, the gentleman insisted upon taking us over the bridge to see the glass-works. I felt there was something unusual in this-it looked suspicious to me. I refused to go. The prominent citizen seemed very much disappointed. We were then left at the hall by ourselves. Albright said the lecture need not begin till 9:30 o'clock, when he would return with some more gentlemen and we could take a carriage drive."

"Did you wait?" "No; I concluded to lecture at once, though but a few people were present. I hurried back to the hotel. No one came to see me or the hotel man, and I had to pawn my shawl to get away."
"Then the terrible danger was safely passed?" remarked the relieved but disappointed reporter.

"Yes; and, from what a kind-hearted clothing dealer and others said about the character of the man I had driven out with, I felt that I had luckily escaped some dark deed."

Is it an honor to the city," asked the widow, "to have streets where free shows of an obscene nature is dealers, as leaves are kent to attract in drinking saloons are kept to attract the refined gentlemen who enjoy such profanity?"
The reporter answered not, but, Joseph like, fled the scene.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHES.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF THE

REIGN OF CHEAP DRY GOODS. Pashions that Defy Fashion-Suggentions to Mothers of Moderate Means and Large Families.

The question of clothes for the children is, in families of moderate means, often an anxious one. To dress them prettily and comfortably, and at the same time inexpensively, is no easy matter. They themselves think a great deal more about dress than one is apt to suppose, and a sensitive, observant child actually suffers from the consciousness of being worse dressed than its playmates. It is easy to clamor for dress reform; to say that rich mothers make over-dressed dolls of their children-an extravagance which leads their less wealthy neighbors to ruin nerves and temper at the sewing machine in the vain effort to emulate their example. All this is true-the more the pity; but simply to deplore the matter does not mend it. Besides there are people who err the other way, who care too little for the pretty and becoming, who fear, by even moderate indulgence, to foster the love of dress in their children's hearts as a heinous sin. Now, the love of dress, when properly regulated, so far from being an unmitigated evil, may be productive of much good. Everybody, and especially every woman, has the right, nay ought to be taught to regard it as a duty, to make herself look as well as possible. Where the love of dress manifests itself in the shape of mere fondness for finery, it is a misfortune, and may be worse; but when well trained it leads to the knowledge of the becoming, and of fitness in dress, and it is a valuable ficulty. Mothers who view this fact properly, may do much to teach their chrildren to make the most of such beauties as they possess, without being unduly vain of them.

ALWAYS GET THE BEST.

In dressing children, as well as grown people, the garments should al-ways be suited to the circumstances of the wearer and the occasion on which they are to be worn. However rich one may be, it is wrong to dress a child so elegantly that it dare not play, or even be natural, for fear of ruining its dress. White is always prettiest for evening and warm weather, and in white there is wide range, from cambries and piques to India muslins and lace. But whatever the material let it be the best of its kind, well-fitting and the control of well made. Put your money in the dress itself rather than in the trimming. Coarse embroideries and cotton laces never look well, and proclaim poverty loudly. A fine pique or or-gandie, simply trimmed, is often the dress of those who can afford more costly garments; cheaper materials loaded with coarse embroideries, never. In the present era of cheap dry goods there is small excuse for not dressing children prettily. For morning there are calicoes, colored cambries, percales and ginghams in endless variety. The realty, as they are warranted, east the ors. They are trimmed with ruffles of

ors. They are trimmed with ruffles of the same and with narrow or colored Hamburg embroideries, or with nar-row Torchon lace. The usual style is the plaited saque with Spanish flounce. The seven and eight cent calicoes are those which should be selected for children—the cheaper brands rarely undergo satisfactorily the bi-weekly washing to which children's calicoes are usually subjected. Cambrics at ten cents are also to be recommended. Many of these calicoes and cambrics come with borders along the selvage on one side, intended to be used as trim-ming. Small figures in black and in brown on a white ground wash best and hold their color as long as they hold together. Children in their first short clothes wear only white, and the favorite pat-tern is the yoke slip. This may be tern is the yoke slip. This may be bought ready-made in cambric of fair quality with tucked yoke and skirt, the yoke and sleeves trimmed with a tiny Hamburg edge, as low as seventy-five cents. With round yokes, which are a newer fashion, they are eighty-five cents, and from these prices go up, according to the material used, until an India muslin slip, trimmed with Valenciennes, for a year old with Valenciennes, for a year old child, is marked at thirty dollars.

CHILDEN'S UNDERWEAR. Underclothing for children should always be of good quality—stout and well made. The trimmings are of course a question of individual means and choice, but at all events let the gar-ments be made of good cloth. It is best to buy Wamsutta or some other standard cotton by the piece, and make up at a set at a time, with tucks for lengthening when practicable. Petti-coats for small children should be made with low bodies, cut so that the garments forms its own strap on the shoulder. Ruffles of the same and tucks trim these prettily, but it is well merely to tuck them at first, and add the ruffle as a means of lengthening the next season. In the winter, for wear with dark dresses, petticoats of blue, red or gray flannel are advisable. Each red or gray flannel are advisable. Each girl will require two, to be worn turn about. They may be trimmed with a plaiting of the same, with folds stitched on, or with embroidery. White flannels will be needed for wear with skirts. The cotton and wool mixed is better than all wool, inasmuch as it is less liable to shrink in washing. Seventy-five per cent. of wool to twenty-five of cotper cent. of wool to twenty-five of cot-ton is the best proportion. Delicate children should wear flannel next the skin the year round in this climate. If the regular vests are too heavy, buy thin flannel and make straight, loose, low-necked slips, with short sleeves set in at the shoulder. Face the seams, bind the neck with flannel binding, and bind the neck with flannel binding, and run a narrow tape or wide bobbin in the neck as a drawing-string. The shirt should be long enough to come well over the hi s, and locar enough to fit comfortably. Knitted shirts are nicer but much more expensive than these, which a iswer all practical purposes. Fashion demands that the poses. Fashion demands that the drawers should not show. Let them be made of the best bleached muslin for girls, unbleached drilling for boys, and though the legs are short, be sure to have them long enough in the seat.

Drawers bodies should be cut like those of the petticoat, made with short sleeves, and trimmed on neck and sleeves as may be advisable. For older girls there are neat colored underwaists, which serve as a compromise between which serve as a compromise between under-body and corset. Long stockings coming up well over the knee, are the style, and may be kept up either by elastic bands, which should not be too tight, or by stocking suspenders. Children from two to twelve years of age should wear night-drawers in preference to gowns. They should be made of bleached muslin in summer, cotton fearned in winter. In cold weather.

flannel in winter. In cold weather, unless merino drawers are worn, the day drawers should be of cotton flannel

THE DEAD LOCK IN CONGRESS COMING TO AN END.

It is quite certain that the long contest between Congress, backed by the Democrats on the one hand contending for free and fair elections and honest jury trials, and the President on the other hand, backed by the Republicans contending for the power of supervising elections and controlling the ballotbox by the bayonet and for packed juries, is nearing its end. While the Democrats are not able to obtain for the people all they desire, they have made a noble struggle and made the issue full and distinct. If the programme that is now proposed is carried out, there will be no back down, and all will be accomplished that is possible until an appeal can be submitted to the people. The cry of back down, and like expressions, are the arguments of impracticables. The Democrats have not a twothirds majority in Congress, and it must be plain to every sensible man that they cannot overcome the President's veto. The protraction of the session is becoming painful to the people; but Congress, if it acts wisely, will not adjourn without passing the appropriations made necessary by laws already on the statute books. The counsels of wise and prudent men are obtaining favor. We see that a committee of such men as Thurman, Saulsbury, Vance and Bailey, on the part of the Senate, and Chalmers, Springer, Ewing and Atkins, on the part of the House, have marked out a plan which is wise and patriotic, and there is little doubt that it will be adopted.

The army bill, pure and simple, will be passed, but it will withhold supplies for transporting troops to the polls or to keep the peace at elections. The legislative, judicial and executive appropriation bill will pass pure and simple; but no appropriation will be made for supervisors and deputy marshals. Congress has a right to direct how the money appropriated shall be used, but Congress must appropriate the money necessary to carry on the government. It is not necessary, in vindicating the rights of the people, to destroy the government. The Democratic party must save the liberties of the people and save the government also. To do this an appeal must be made to the people, and the people, if they have not already lost their love of free government, will protect their liberties, save the government and exalt the Democratic party by placing its leaders in command.

ACQUITTAL OF HON. NOBLE A. HULL.

In a speech, delivered in Gorman Hall in the city of Washington before the Southern Radical Association of that city, immediately after the assembling of the extra session of the XLVIth Congress by Hon. J. J. Martin, who claims to represent the first district of North Caroling and men or ideida upon the prima facia case, Hull, having the Governor's certificate, just as Martin had.

In denouncing Hull, Martin was represented by the Washington Republican, as saying that Hull was indicted for a crime in Florida, growing out of the late election; and that he believed and hoped that Hull would be convicted, and sent to the penitentiary.

Mr. Martin only expressed the universal wish of the Radical party in that ill-timed and violently abusive speech, and there can be no doubt, that it was the deliberate purpose of the Radicals to convict Hull, and send him to the penitentiary, so as to prevent the State of Florida's casting a Democratic vote in case the election for President in 1880, should be sent to the House. It is with peculiar pleasure that we announce that Mr. Hull has been acquitted. Base and false charges were trumped up. A Radical grand jury of a Federal court indicted him, an unscrupulous Radical partisan district attorney prosecuted him and a prejudiced partisan Federal Judge by the name of Thomas Settle presided, and a Republican petit jury acquitted him. We experience great pleasure in this result. Of course our Mr. Martin, who had prejudged the case that he was to act on as a judge, is greatly disappointed at this just result, as well as the other Radicals whose plans have come to naught.

Having made so successful a fight, when the odds and combinations were so great against him, we can but hope that Mr. Hull will be victorious in his next encounter, which will be before the House when his seat is contested by the notorious carpet bagger, Horatio Bisbee.

It appears that the ninth section of the Warner silver bill by its peculiar wording destroys the force of the fourth section, which gives to the government the difference in value between the silver as bullion and its face value as coin. The suggestion is made that the sentence which works this change is an interlineation. At any rate, the House voted squarely to bestow the profit in question in a certain way, and if it has reversed that decision it is through some misunderstanding. If the Senate should send the bill in its present shape to the President, it would only be common courtesy on his part to subdue any desire that he may have to sign such a bill, and send it back to the House to be amended so as to express the evident intention of that body. In case the bill came to him again it would be in order for him to veto it upon its merits, or demerits. In this and similar ways an unfailing supply of Presidential vetoes may be ensured.

THE editor of the Okalona States denounces the letter purporting to be from him, which indicates that this paper is in Republican pay for camgaigning purposes, as a forgery. He seems to have a poor opinion of the editor of the paper which published the alleged letter. Indeed, he frankly says that he considers him a blistering disgrace to journalism, a lying assassin of grace to journalism, a lying assassin of the walls of an adjoining house to live the state of the walls of an adjoining house the wall have the wal character, a dastard too cowardly to face | fall down, called out: "Come in."

the consequences of his guilt and a felon whose fit and proper place is in the penitentiary. If the editor of the States should throw self-control and the amenities of journalism to the winds, and let himself fairiy loose, the devastation in the South would, it is thought, be greater than if the Kansas cyclone, demolishing trees, dwellinghouses, mills, factories, churches and people, had struck that section, or than if Etna were belching out lava from its thirteen craters in the immediate vicinity. THE State is blessed with another newspaper war. Colonel George Wortham, recently furnished an article for the Oxford Torchlight which appeared editorially, and Captain Rufus Amis, of the Henderson Review, "went for him" in his paper. Now these doughty gentlemen are running private mail routes between their respective places of residence, with demands for apologies, half-way tenders of negotiation, faint hints of "pistols and coffee," christian opposition to "the code," etc. Here is a chance for arbitration. The elergymen of the two villages should organize a missionary society before the services of the undertaker are re-

THE most favorable testimony for the Republican side yet elicited by the Wallace committee, frankly concedes that the deputy marshals appointed in 1876 and 1878 were "well-known workers in the Republican party," and were selected for the aid they were expected to render the Republican ticket. Mr. Hayes claims that such officials should be appointed by the Executive department and paid from the public purse in order to protect "the purity of the bal-

Political Notes.

Mr. Hayes has kindly suggested that after the appropriation bills are passed in the shape that he desires, he will consider the subject of the repeal of partisan legislation. This is tall talk for a man who holds his seat in the White House by fraud, although it doubtless indicates very correctly the real strength of Mr. Hayes' principles. If he believed the assertions of the veto messages which Mr. McCrary has written for him, he would never consent to even the suggestion of a compromise.-Boston Post.

The Cleveland Herald's Washington correspondent says that Conkling and other Grant men express great disapprobation of Sherman's letter announc ing himself a candidate for the Presidential nomination. It is believed that one probable effect will be the refusal of Grant to allow his name to be used. He is known to have great repugnance to a contest with others for the nomination. As all sorts of Presidential candidates write all sorts of letters, Secretary Sherman must be allowed to amuse himself in that way to his heart's content; but if he will closely note the policy of the one man who writes no letters, but depends upon the follies of others for his advancement, he may see how he has lost in the race by too much explanation of lost opportunities.—Boston Her-

As an active and persistent candidate, Seretary Sherman will take a large share of the strength which otherwise might drift toward Grant. His friends have declared that the latter would never enter the cartvass excep in response to the unanimous call of the Republican party. Mr. Sherman plainly intimates that that will not be extended. such extreme State rights people that they held Congress had no right to go behind the face of elections returns from a State to rip up fraud. They now claim that the States should be abolished, and the Federal troops turned loose upon the people.—Louisville

Bill Chandler dearly loves the colored man. It is said he goes off and weeps for the exodusters every day. It is to be feared that Bill and his colleagues haven't made as much money out of this emigration business as they had counted on.

The three planks in the next Republican platform, though differently expressed, will be election by bayonets backed juries and abolition of the State

The Cleveland Herald wants the Democrats in Congress to give the Republi-cans a rest. And all because the Democrats don't want voters at the polls to have arrest.

Now Mars doth wince, and all the dogs of war do howl disconsolate. Mc-Crary hath scabbarded his sword to wrap his peaceful parts in gentle ermine. - Louisville Courier-Journal.

The name of the Georgia Congressman who will carry his district for Grant in certain contingencies is still firmly withheld from the public.—At-

than he feels now in the role of the man "I can look for no good from the President and his Cabinet: they have not

The Revue de Bretagne et de Vendee gives the following account of the introduction of the substantive, "omnibus," A certain M. Baudry, established in 1827 hot baths in a suburb of Nantes. As customers did not come in sufficient numbers, he resolved as the best means for attracting them to send at fixed hours a long car to the center of the town. This car was known at first as the "voiture des bains de Richebourg;" but a friend of Baudry's suggested as shorter and more convenient designa shorter and more convenient designa-tion the word "omnibus," which had already obtained a certain vogue, be-cause a grocer of the town named Omnes had had painted over his shop the words "Omnes Omnibus." Baudry established shortly after lines of omni-buses at Bordeaux and Paris, but the rigorous winter of 1829, which rendered the streets very difficult and forage very dear, caused him to die of grief. The omnibus, however, survived both the had winter and its founder.

By Hon. A. W. Tourgee.

One Man That Knows.

Sir Timotheus Finnigan Lee knew Littlefield. He wishes to say: "I used to know Gineral Littlefield, and he was just as generous-hearted a gintleman as ever lived. He just exactly would shpend his money freer than any man I ever met. He could bate Tim Lee shpending it. I wish some more of that very same kind would only come down just now and turn loose some gos in pressure, southwest to seutheast winds, slightly warmer and clear or partly Yankee money without costing the peeples of Nort Carolina a single pinny. It's a very fortunate thing that the Mrs. Moon was not here in the palmy days of the ring; she might have reformed the railroad ring and stopped them from negotiating such worthless paper through the Northern bankers and brokers and the moneyed iliment of the North. Littlefield paid money as well as order checks. Do you think s man would give a check for every drink he gave those fellows in those days? But I ain't goin' to get into any discussion about Littlefield. No, sir! Not

After general discussion of interest, n connection with the management of trials of speed, with the view to stimulate the production of valuable horses in our State, it was resolved, on motion of W. G. Upchurch, that the sum of one thousand dollars be fixed as the limit of the premiums to be awarded from the funds of the Society in the trials of speed at the next Fair. And, on motion of Dr. P. E. Hines, it was further resolved that the entries for premiums offered by the Society, be restricted to North Carolina bred horses.

The Secretary was requested to correspond with the Chairm n of the Board of the Penitentiary, to ascertain if convict labor can be obtained on the new road opened to the Fair grounds. The meeting adjourned at a late hour after settling many matters of routine business.

The best definition of a perfect hotel is an establishment which unites the luxury of a palace with the comforts of a home. Long effort would fail to give a more concise and fitting description of the "St. Nicholas" of New York, for a quarter of a century known in Europe and America as pre-eminent among its rivals. Never has it stood so high as under the management of the pres-ent proprietor, in point of cuisine, perfection of fittings and conveniences, and devoted attention to the tastes of guests.

Woman's Wisdom.

"She insists that is more important that her family shall be kept in full health, than that she should have all the fashionable dresses and styles of the times. She therefore sees to it, that each member of her family is supplied with enough Hop Bitters, at the first appearance of any symptoms of ill health, to prevent a fit of sickness with its attendant expense, care and anxiety. All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."—Ed.

The old patron Dutch Saint, whose name is honored from the extreme Orient to the Ultima Thule, never had a more striking illustration than in the nonor of giving name to the "St. Nicholas" hotel of New York, an establish ment associated in the minds of tens of thousands with the most profuse and elegant hospitality. Still in the van, this hotel unites all the best features of the present with the charming traditions of the past. The reduction of prices in connection with the excellence of accommodations makes it the cheapest hotel in the country. ju3-2t.

Lively Stock Operations.

The current of recent events has given great impetus to business in Wall street, and many successful turns are reported where immense profits are made in short periods. The most successful way that we have heard of yet for operating in stocks is by the Com bination Method of Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, New York. By this system thousands of orders in various sums are pooled into one vast capital and operated under the most experi-enced and skilful management, thus, securing to each shareholder superior advantages and profits, not possible in any other way. Profits are paid at end of 30 days. A gentleman in Boston made $747.30 on an investment of $100. Many others are doing as well or better. Capital in any amount from $10 to $100,-000 can be used with equal proportionate success by this combination or Cooperative Method. $15 would $75, or 5 per cent. on the stock; $100 would return $900, or 9 per cent. ing the month, and so on, according to the market. The new circular contains "two unerring rules for success' and full information, so that any one can operate with profit. Stocks and can operate with profit. Stocks and bonds wanted.
